- (1) All the changes in translation should be done under the condition of being faithful to the original meaning (Zhang Peiji, 2014).
- (2) Make your contribution as informative as is required; do not make your contribution more informative than is required (Grice, 1989).
- (3) One influential view stemming from the work of McDonald (2006) is that L1-L2 differences in processing functional morphology are explainable in terms of domain-general processes, L2 processing being slower and more memory-demanding than
